Eskil Israelsson

A flexible, reliable high-performance thinning head

Forest machines have been part of Eskil Israelsson's life ever since his childhood. Back then, it was his father who owned the machines, whereas today he runs the company EISAB Skogsmaskiner, which has four employees working in the forest and a fifth to drive the company's semi-trailer. Their harvester, a Rottne H11, is equipped with an SP 461 LF, their fourth one and a head that Eskil is happy to recommend to colleagues who work with thinning.

"It's a reliable head with a superb saw and low service costs, something that separates it from other heads."
